Upcoming Event December 2022: Laboratory visits

Responsible: Laboratory safety officers
When: First week of December 2022

We believe, that one of the most fundamental ways to improve laboratory safety is to visit each lab and better understand what your research looks like. Furthermore, we would like to discuss prevalent safety issues and hear your thoughts on how they can be addressed to improve research practices within the department. To this end, we want to continue our biannual peer-to-peer safety audits, where you can provide a short safety-oriented tour of your lab to members of our team. While we intend to address several formalities and questions during these visits, they are solely intended to be informal audits. As such, these audits will function more as conversation starters rather than ways to administer citations or collect documentation.

We'll reach out to each safety officer with a wide range of dates for this visit.

There will be awards this year!
